2016 CALL FOR ASSOCIATE EDITORS

HAU: JOURNAL OF ETHNOGRAPHIC THEORY

The editors of HAU: Journal of Ethnographic Theory are delighted to launch our second international call for associate editors and invite scholars from around the world to join our prestigious editorial team. We especially encourage female applicants to apply.

We are seeking engaged individuals from any part of the world who share HAU’s vision and aims, to contribute their skills and passion to the long-term growth of the journal and HAU Books, and to show both leadership and vision that further the aims of the journal. All fields of competence within anthropology are suitable, and we particularly welcome applications from scholars with expertise in visual anthropology, language and politics, the Middle East, kinship, economic anthropology, and anthropology of science.

Selection Criteria

- Fluency in English, excellent written and verbal communication skills to carry out duties effectively.
- Proven achievement and scholarly excellence in a particular field of expertise, as well as general expertise in the broad field of socio-cultural anthropology.

Position Duties

- Associate editors will conduct regular internal reviews of submitted manuscripts, contribute to oversee the external peer-review process of manuscripts in their area of expertise, provide advice on the choice of appropriate peer reviewers, evaluate reviews, and provide a final recommendation to the editor.
- Associate editors will be required to meet all deadlines and maintain regular, clear communication with the senior editors and staff.
- Selected associate editors may be asked to contribute to the journal and book series more broadly with its organizational direction, its funding scheme, its marketing and promotion, and its manuscript solicitation/acquisition, among other tasks.

Applications

Expressions of interest are welcome from all qualified candidates regardless of location or field of expertise. Please submit a cover letter and an updated CV by May 10, 2016 to:
